

BRASS MONKEYS AT GORTNAMOYAGH

Over the last few years Roe Valley have held a Club shoot on the last Sunday of the year. Sandwiched between Christmas and New Year this gives us a chance to walk off some of that turkey and christmas pudding. Christened 'the Brass Monkey Shoot' it lived up to its name this year as the temperatures struggled to reach above zero. Although a Club shoot everyone was invited, fifteen archers from other Clubs made the total of twenty six archers who braved the frost.

The round was a FITA Unmarked with an extra five 3D targets scattered around the course. As the Field season runs from Jan to Dec available daylight can prove a problem at this time of year but, keeping the course compact, Philippe Moison managed to get everyone finished and away just as the sun sank behind the mountains.

The indoor season is well under way but you can still shoot outdoors. See the calendar for the next!
